Remembering World War II

The Tide Turns in the Pacific

During 1941 and early 1942, Japan had a string of victories in the Pacific, starting with their attack on Pearl Harbor and Wake Island in December of 1941. Simultaneous with these attacks, the Japanese attacked the Philippines. The Philippines had been a U.S. colony until 1936, when it became a U.S. Commonwealth, much like Puerto Rico is today, and so there were U.S. troops stationed there, who fought alongside Filipino nationals against the Japanese. The battle of the Philippines lasted until May of 1942, and is generally considered one of America's worst defeats, with an estimated 23,000 U.S. soldiers killed or captured, and an estimated 100,000 Filipinos killed or captured. Despite Japan's initial victory in the Philippines, the Japanese were continuously harassed by Filipino guerrillas for the next few years, allowing the Japanese to control only a small portion of the Philippines. The Japanese were finally driven out of the Philippines in 1944 when General MacArthur returned, though some Japanese troops continued to occupy and fight in parts of the Philippines until the end of the war. (In fact, the last of the "Japanese holdouts" was a soldier named Hiroo Onoda, who hid in the jungles of the Philippines until 1974!)

In April of 1942 things started to turn for the Allies. The Doolittle Raid on April 18, 1942 was an air raid on Tokyo and Honshu province, and served several purposes. It served as retaliation for Pearl Harbor, it showed that the Japanese mainland was vulnerable to U.S. attacks, and it was a boost to morale for the Allies. Following up on this were two strategic victories for the Allies: the Battle of the Coral Sea (May 4-8, 1942) and the Battle of Midway (June 4-7, 1942). Japan lost four aircraft carriers in the Battle of Midway, and after this battle, the loss of both materiel and manpower was too great for Japan to keep up with replacement needs, whereas the industrial power of the United States could readily do so.

While there were many other battles in the Pacific theater, the tide had definitively turned by 1943, despite there being two more years of fighting in various parts of the Pacific. One of the more disturbing facts about the war in the Pacific is that the Japanese code of honor considered defeat to be a terrible humiliation, and they would rather die than surrender or be captured. This led to Japan using Kamikazes towards the end of the war, that is, pilots who would fly their planes (loaded with explosives and fuel) into aircraft carriers. Another unfortunate consequence of the Japanese code of honor were Japanese soldiers, so-called "Japanese holdouts," who hid in caves or deep in the jungles of islands in the Pacific. Many of these were found during the 1940s, -50s and -60s, and the last of these Japanese holdouts were not found until the 1970s, almost 30 years after the end of the war. One of the last was Shoichi Yokoi, who was found on Guam on January 24, 1972 by local fishermen, who he attacked, thinking that his life was in danger. Upon his return to Japan, he is quoted as saying "It is with much embarrassment that I return." Despite having known since 1952 that the war was over, he explained his reasons for staying hidden by saying "We Japanese soldiers were told to prefer death to the disgrace of getting captured alive."

Preheat oven to 375°. Cook fettuccine according to package directions. Meanwhile, in a large skillet, saute mushrooms and onion in butter until tender. Stir in flour until blended; whisk in wine until smooth, about 2 minutes. Slowly whisk in milk. Bring to a boil; cook and stir until thickened. Stir in turkey, salt, pepper and pepper sauce. Drain fettuccine. Layer half of the fettuccine, turkey mixture and cheese in a greased 13x9-in. baking dish. Repeat layers. Sprinkle with paprika if desired. Cover and bake 25-30 minutes or until heated through. Let stand 10 minutes before serving.
